

STATE RESTS HEMBREE CASE

Roosevelt Orders Expense Slash as Revenues Decline

Government's Receipts Running Far Behind His Estimate

RELIEF CUT LIKELY

President's Retrenchment Order Comes on Eve of Message

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt reported disappointing tax collections Tuesday and ordered economies in all government agencies to prevent this year's deficit from being "far greater than was anticipated."

He said he had sent this letter to departmental and agency heads:

"It is apparent at this time that the revenues of the government for the present fiscal year will be materially less than the amount estimated in my budget message of last January; and, hence, the deficit will be far greater than was anticipated unless there is an immediate curtailment of expenditures. You will carefully examine the status of appropriations for your activities with a view of making a substantial saving by eliminating or deferring all expenditures which are not absolutely necessary at this time."

"You will report to me through the acting director of the budget not later than May 1, 1937, the steps which you are undertaking to reduce expenditures and the amount of the estimated saving resulting therefrom."

Relief Message Soon

Mr. Roosevelt's request for sharp curtailment of expenditures in the remainder of this fiscal year, which ends June 30, came only a short time before he is scheduled to advise congress whether relief outlays should be cut down in the next fiscal year.

Leading Democratic senators already are preparing for a drive to reduce relief spending. In the forefront of this movement is Senator Byrnes (Dem., S. C.), chief administration spokesman on the Senate Appropriation Committee and long a close adviser to the president. He disclosed Tuesday that he is making a survey of the fiscal condition of the states with a view to making them bear a larger share of next year's relief burden.

In disclosing he had ordered officials to try for savings, Mr. Roosevelt said he sent a similar letter last year but that it did not go out until late in May. By notifying departmental heads earlier, he said, greater savings might be made.

In his January budget message, Mr. Roosevelt estimated this year's receipts would aggregate $5,828,150,000 and the gross deficit, $2,652,654,000. Through April 10, receipts totaled $3,898,591,000 and the deficit $1,901,041,000.

Cites Rail Pension Levy

The president said Tuesday that some taxes had fallen far below expectations. He cited the railroad retirement and gift levies. He said income tax revenues also are under estimates at present.

Class One railroads and their employees now are paying retirement levies into a special court fund, pending outcome of litigation challenging the constitutionality of the 1935 rail pension legislation. Representatives of the roads and rail brotherhoods have drafted a voluntary pension plan to replace that now under attack, but the Treasury has objected to it on the ground it would not provide revenues sufficient to meet benefit payments.

Rail management and labor representatives met Treasury officials and congressional finance leaders Tuesday in an effort to agree on a pension measure, but the conferees reported no accord was reached.

President Roosevelt declared he did not think representatives of the different groups were so far apart, however.

AAA to Drop $50

Almost immediately after the president's request Secretary Wallace revealed that $50 employees would be pruned from the pay roll of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at the end of this month. He said this staff had been engaged in making payments to farmers under the original crop control act, and that a staff of 120 would be retained to complete the work.

The AAA reported its employees numbered 7,278 in May, 1935, and 4,483 at the start of this month. Officials said discharged employees would be furnished or retained on a non-pay status while efforts were made to find private employment or other government jobs for them.

The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that there are approximately 4,650,000 honey bee colonies in the country.

Co-ed Pose?

When Heloise Martin left her show in Chicago and Bus Bergman vanished simultaneously, it was reported that the Drake University "show girl" and the school's football star had eloped. Miss Martin won her title, considerable notoriety and a stage contract by posing for intimate "co-ed" pictures for a magazine. One of the pictures showing her in a shower bath brought a protest from Miss Martin.

Teachers to Hear Free Textbook Law

White Instructors to Meet Here at 10 Saturday—Negroes at 2

The terms of the new Arkansas free textbook law, and its local requirements, will be explained at Hempstead county teachers' meetings in Hope Saturday.

The white teachers will meet at Hope High School at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, according to an announcement by E. E. Austin, county examiner.

Negro teachers will meet at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Yerger negro high school.

Mr. Austin said it was expected that the annual school enumeration period, April 20 to May 15, would also furnish an opportunity to carry out compliance with the free textbook law.

Wall Street for Unions, Says Ford

Independent Auto Magnate Hints He Will Lead in Wage Increase

By the Associated Press
Henry Ford returned to Detroit Tuesday from a vacation on his plantation in Georgia, but declined to indicate what his course will be if the United Automobile Workers Union makes demands on him.

Ford said he would not put anything in the way of his men joining any union, any church or any lodge they like, but said he would advise them not to join a union, terming it "foolish" because they will lose their liberty and won't get anything out of it.

The independent automobile magnate said that provisions of the Wagner labor act upheld Monday by the Supreme Court "have been standard practices of the Ford Motor Company for years."

He asserted that its terms "might have been dictated by Wall Street."

Asked about wages, he said he intended to give "the Wall Street crowd some competition," adding that "you can't compete on low wages."

He would not say when he intended to increase the present $6 a day minimum or to what level he planned to raise it.

"If there are any union men in our plants there are very few, I think," Ford said.

Asked specifically what his idea of the Wagner act is, Ford said: "It still remains to be seen whether"

Duffie New Head of School Board; Succeeds Wilson

LaGrone, Cassidy, Young Take Office as New School Directors

FINANCES IMPROVE

Wilson Reviews Warrant Reduction—Miss Henry Is Re-Elected

Developments at the annual reorganization meeting of the Hope School Board Tuesday night at the high school building were:

1. Election of J. P. Duffie as president of the school board, succeeding Robert M. Wilson, retired; and re-election of A. A. Albritton as secretary.

2. Installation of three new directors: R. M. LaGrone, Jr., Calvin Cassidy, E. P. Young.

3. Re-election of Miss Beryl Henry as city superintendent for the 1937-38 term; and, effective immediately, the appointment of Jimmy Jones, faculty member, as principal of the high school.

4. Approval of a National Youth Administration (NYA) project to build a manual training shop on the high school grounds.

5. A rising vote of thanks by the new board in honor of Theo P. Witt, who Tuesday night ended 12 years' service as a director; and Past President Wilson, who concluded six years on the board.

Faculty lists will be compiled late this month and will probably be acted upon at the first board meeting in May, as is the annual custom.

Old Board Winds Up

Before the installation of the new directors the old board completed two pieces of unfinished business: (1) Announced the passage of title to the old Garland high school building from the school system to the City of Hope, for $15,000, completing a contract that was begun in 1933; and (2) accepting the NYA's proposal to build the manual training shop.

The new directors were then inaugurated and proceeded with the election of the superintendent.

Directors LaGrone and Cassidy succeeded Wilson and Witt, retired; and Director Young replaces James R. Henry, who resigned from the board with still another year to serve.

The new school board personnel follows: President Duffie; Secretary Albritton; Directors LaGrone, Cassidy, Young and A. H. Washburn.

In concluding his service as director and president, Mr. Wilson told a joint meeting of old and new directors that the financial position of the Hope Special School District had been tremendously improved since the dark days of the panic.

The situation was remedied, he said, by drastic economies in operation, made possible by a loyal and efficient superintendent and faculty; by timely funding of several years ago; and by the purchase in 1933 of the old Garland property by the City of Hope for $15,000.

Warrants Reduced

Mr. Wilson showed the following table of operating budgets, ranging from $66,952 at the peak to $39,028 last year, and the range in outstanding warrant totals from $80,200 at the top, to $22,099 last year:

Budget for the Years:

1926-27	$55,037.42
1927-28	$2,891.39
1928-29	$7,289.02
1929-30	$1,753.15
1930-31 (Year high school building built)	$6,952.33
1931-32	$2,299.78
1932-33	$5,315.78
1933-34 (Federal Aid given)	$4,376.35
1934-35 (Paid in warrants)	$6,848.08
1935-36 (7 months)	$9,028.23
Peak Reached for Outstanding Warrants for the Years:
1931-32	$80,200.00
1932-33	$7,647.76
1933-34	$6,847.76
1934-35	$3,478.07
1935-36	$2,099.17
1936-37 (Nearest approach this year)	$2,099.17

Italy to Be Topic at First Baptist

Rev. W. R. Hamilton Continues Mid-Week Illustrated Lectures

The illustrated lecture on the Mediterranean countries will continue at the mid-week service of the First Baptist church with pictures of Italy.

The Rev. William Russell Hamilton, pastor, will conduct his audience via lecture and picture to the volcano, Mt. Vesuvius, the ruins of Pompeii, and Rome "the eternal city on the banks of the Tiber."

The public is invited to attend this mid-week service at 7:45 p. m.

The Christmas of 1890 was the coldest on record in Great Britain.

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

LONGVIEW, Texas—The baseball club owners are getting so hard up for cash they're going to start the season next week whether it's warm or not. They're a queer lot anyway. Always trying to get pitchers no better can hit and trying to get batters who can hit any pitcher. Baseball sort of gets hold of a person, like lumbago, and comes and goes without the slightest warning. It takes your mind off everything but payday in the winter. The undertakers no more than get rested up till it's Sunday again when the automobiles start making business good.

Plea for Peace Is Given to Americas

Unity in New World to Preserve Democracy, Says Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt said Wednesday that the continued maintenance and improvement of democracy, mutual confidence and positive co-operation form the most important guarantees of durable world peace.

The president, addressing the governing board of the Pan-American Union of 21 American republics in observance of Pan-American day, asked a pledge to give practical effect to the 19 agreements to advance peace, trade and purchase, reached at the recent Buenos Aires conference.

He recalled his own attendance at the conference and said:

"The deepest impression which I carried away was the potency of a unity of the Americas in developing democratic institutions in the New World and by example in helping the cause of world peace."

Parole Reform to Be Put Into Effect

Arkansas Adopts Recommendation of Department of Justice

LITTLE ROCK.—Recommendations for a planned parole system for Arkansas were submitted to Governor Bailey by Ray L. Huff of Washington, parole executive for the Department of Justice, Tuesday.

Mr. Huff came here Saturday by request of the governor. His recommendations were made after a series of conferences with the Penal Board, state parole officers, officials of the Department of Public Welfare and the State Police Commission, and State Parole Officer C. A. Grier.

Mr. Huff set out a procedure for handling applications for clemency. When an application is received, he reported, it should go to Parole Officer Grier, together with reports from the prison, on the applicant's record and medical reports, briefs from case records of the Welfare Department, and reports from the district parole officer and the local board in question.

Grier then would make an investigation of the case, and prepare a docket of all information relevant to the application, for submission to the Parole Board, with his recommendation. The board would make its decision on the case at a regular monthly meeting and notify Grier and the prison authorities of its action.

Systematic records of all applications for paroles, and their disposition, would be kept. Welfare Department case-workers would assist in checking data included in applications for paroles.

Grier said that Mr. Huff's recommendations will be accepted and a "planned parole system" will be put into effect as soon as practicable.

Studies leading up to the recommendation showed that between 600 and 700 convicts "come out" of the penitentiary each year, Grier said. How many have served out their sentences, how many have been paroled or furloughed, in the past, is unknown, he said.

The parole record system will be organized as of January 1, 1937, and records of other paroles will be inserted as the men are located by parole officers, he said.

Except under extraordinary circumstances, paroles should not be granted until the applicant has served at least one-third of his sentence, Grier said.

Ministers Thank City for Service on Easter

The ministers of Hope in a meeting Monday passed a resolution expressing appreciation for the fine co-operation of the group of laymen, Hope Star, and the school authorities in making the Easter sunrise service a success.

The ministers' meeting was opened with a devotional by the Rev. Fred R. Harrison. The principal feature of the meeting was a review of Rose Wilder Lane's book "Give Me Liberty" by the Rev. V. A. Hammond.

Labor Reform Is Placed Ahead of Court Change Bill

Administration Suddenly Changes Its Attitude in the Congress

ECHO WAGNER ACT

Meanwhile, Labor Dispute Forces Out Two Canadian Ministers

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Administration leaders, long insistent that the judiciary reorganization bill had precedence over wage-and-hour legislation, reconsidered their strategy Wednesday in the light of the supreme court's Wagner act decisions.

President Roosevelt's advisers expect to complete soon a new set of recommendations on the establishment of minimum wage and maximum hour standards.

These may be transmitted to congress regardless of the court bill's status.

Canadian Cabinet Shake-up

TORONTO, Canada.—(AP)—Prime Minister Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario province Wednesday demanded the resignations of two members of his cabinet who have been out of sympathy with his fight to prevent the John L. Lewis unions from gaining a foothold in Canada.

Simultaneously, while flag-waving strike pickets paraded as the Oshawa General Motors-of-Canada plant to show Hepburn they were not "Communists," C. I. O. Union Organizer Hugh Thompson said a union official in Detroit had told him that General Motors workers in the United States would sit down again if the company shipped cars from the United States to England to fill Oshawa orders.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should ruled paper ever be used for social notes or friendly letters?
2. Should a woman ever use "Respectfully" as the close of a letter?
3. Is it correct to end a formal social note with "Sincerely yours?"
4. In signing a card of greeting, is the name of the wife or husband written first?
5. Should cards and gifts received during an illness be acknowledged?

You want to show appreciation for special hospitality shown you by a friend of the hostess whose house guest you have just been—

- (a) Write her a note of thanks?
- (b) Thank your hostess for her friend's kindness?
- (c) Ask your hostess to thank her friend for you?

- Answers
1. No.
 2. No.
 3. Yes.
 4. The wife. "Mary and John Smith."
 5. Yes. If the recipient is very ill, notes of thanks may be written by members of his family.

Morgan Picture Market Bearish

J. P. Morgan took off his hat to one photographer and offered his umbrella to another at a Long Island society wedding—although hardly in his lately amiable fashion. Lulled by the international banker's friendliness of the past two years, newsmen leveled cameras at him as he stepped out of fashionable St. John's of Lettington church. First he ducked behind his high top in the flower-lined canopy, then strode angrily at Cameraman Cantor with his umbrella, while other photographers busily clicked shutters to get the scene below.

First Donation on County-Seat Vote

Young Business Men Vote $50 Toward Circulation of Petition

Following publication of the City of Hope's tender of the old Garland high school site as a courthouse location if the Hempstead county-seat is moved from Washington to Hope within six months, there was further action here Wednesday.

The Young Business Men's association announced it would donate $50 toward a fund to cover expenses in circulating a petition for the county-seat election.

The Y. B. M. A. announcement said their action was taken following a poll of nine officers and directors.

Attorneys to Get 30% Officials' Pay

Claim This as Fee for Back-Pay Legislation in Assembly

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—G. B. Oliver, of Little Rock, one of the attorneys representing assessors and clerks during legislative consideration of the 1937 act which appropriated $162,000 to pay the back salaries of assessors and clerks, told the Arkansas Democrat Wednesday he and the attorneys who assisted him would receive 30 per cent of the back salaries paid to claimants as the fee for legal services.

Oliver, chairman of the new State Game & Fish Commission, asserted that the services involved a large amount of research to determine the sources from which an appropriation covering salary claims from 1933 to 1935 could be made.

Prosecution Ends Testimony at 11, Demanding Death

Hembree Puts in 50 Minutes' Testimony in His Own Defense

TWO VERSIONS GIVEN

Cold-Blooded Slayer, Says Prosecutor—Insane, Is Defense Plea

By LEONARD ELLIS

The Hiram Hembree murder case opened in circuit court at Washington Wednesday morning amid an overflow crowd of spectators who were seared as they entered the court room as a prelude against any possible disturbance.

The jury was quickly selected and testimony started shortly after 9 o'clock. When court recessed at noon, Hembree, confessed "haunted" slayer of Van Derryberry, Sr., on a Hope street early last fall, had been on the witness stand 50 minutes.

Prosecutor's Statement

In his opening statement to the jury, Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stewart characterized the killing of Derryberry as a "cold blooded, diabolical murder," and asked the jury to return a verdict of guilty without recommendation which under the law carries the death penalty.

The prosecutor declared that Derryberry was "shot down like a dog in the street" because of a debt which Stewart said Hembree owed Derryberry at the time of the slaying.

The defendant's attorney, Steve Carrigan, said in his opening remarks to the jury that "when you hear my client relate his story of the case you will know that he is insane."

"Hembree is hopelessly insane and doesn't know right from wrong—you are trying a lunatic and a crazy man," Carrigan declared.

"Because of his diseased mind Hembree conceived ideas that Derryberry was trying to run him off his farm, that Derryberry was a crook and was plotting against him. These things do not exist, gentlemen of the jury, but they are real to Hembree," Carrigan said.

After five witnesses had testified, the state rested its case at 11 a. m. Hembree took the stand and told a fantastic story that he said began in 1931. He remained on the stand until court recessed at 11:50 a. m.

Hembree's Testimony

In substance, his testimony follows: He said he had lived in the DeAnn community all of his life and had known Derryberry all of his life. He said he didn't go to church because "I don't believe in hypocrisy."

Hembree said that he was shunted in the DeAnn community by several persons, but that he had always paid his debts and had attended to his own business.

As questioning continued in regard to a debt Hembree was said to owe Derryberry, the witness suddenly beamed:

"Harry Derryberry swore the biggest lie I ever heard."

At this point Mrs. Derryberry, widow of the dead man, became hysterical and was led from the courtroom. Judge Dexter Bush halted court and warned the jury not to be influenced by matters not in the evidence in the case.

Hembree continued by saying that "Derryberry was a crook and a rascal who meddled in everybody's business." He said that Derryberry plotted to kill him and on two occasions had drawn guns on him. One of the occasions was in Hope in 1931 and the other near the Hembree farm in 1935, Hembree said.

Hembree said that he couldn't sleep at nights because a "negro and Derryberry" snooped around the house peering in windows and plotting against him. The slayer said he could hear voices in the walls and ceiling that "haunted" him.

He then told of the day of the shooting in Hope. Hembree said that he had come to Hope to sell some mules and was walking down South Walnut street to the Tom Carrel mule barn when he saw Derryberry and a son, Quinton, get out of a truck near the Hempstead County Lumber company plant.

"I saw Derryberry reach into his hip pocket as if to get a gun and I knew then the showdown had come. I poured it on him. I didn't run away because when you kill a dog you don't have to run," Hembree said.

"I walked north on South Walnut to the office of Hope Star and turned at the postoffice. I then walked on and went to the Tom Carrel mule barn when I told Jim Bearden I had had some trouble with Van Derryberry, but that I didn't want to make any statement"

Tree Belt's Boondoggle That May Prove a Boon

THREE years ago our benign and fatherly federal government furnished the nation with a more abundant laugh by announcing a scheme to criss-cross the western plains with a great shelter belt of young and hopeful trees.

On plains where trees never grew, trees were to grow by the thousands and the hundreds of thousands, in long windrows reaching from Canada to Mexico. Drouths would be checked, dust storms would be killed in infancy, and the grateful shade of these trees would make the west blossom like the rose.

This announcement touched off a wide blast of ridicule. Plant trees where nature obviously had meant no trees to exist? Conjure rain out of the skies with a row of spindly saplings? The trees wouldn't live, and they wouldn't do any good if they did live. Here was a boondoggle (and do you remember that word?) on a scale to make all other boondoggles look sick.

X X X

THE government went ahead with the job, in spite of all this laughter, until congress finally refused to appropriate any more money for it; and just the other day the United Press wires carried a little story telling how this luckless shelter belt project looks now.

The funny part of it is that this much derided project looks pretty good.

Today there are 1277 miles of shelter strips. Government workers planted an average of 740 trees to the acre; despite severe drouths since the plantings, an average of 550 trees to the acre have survived. These trees now range around 20 feet or more in height, and U. S. Forest Service experts declare flatly that the shelter belt, as far as it goes, is a success.

"Experience gained thus far in shelter belt and wind-break planting," says a Forest Service bulletin, "demonstrates the value of this type of work in the great plains region, where an urgent necessity exists for an extensive tree-planting program."

Carlos G. Bates, silviculturist for the Lake States Forest Experiment Station, points out that an effective windbreak such as a belt of trees will cut wind velocity from 10 to 50 per cent for a distance 30 times as great as the windbreak's height. A belt of trees 65 feet high, therefore, would cut wind velocities for upward of a third of a mile—and, to that extent, would stop dust storms at the source.

X X X

CONGRESS might very profitably give more thought to this shelter belt idea. Apparently it is not nearly so funny as we once supposed. It is perfectly obvious that something needs to be done to conserve the soil of the plains states; the shelter belt seems to be about as good a "something" as anyone has yet suggested.

Keeping Munitions Home

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE and Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., seem to have the idea, if the scheme of embargoing munitions shipments to warring nations is sound in small doses, it ought to be equally sound in big doses.

They have introduced a bill in congress, accordingly, which would ban all munitions shipments—not only in time of war, but in time of peace as well. The only exceptions would be shipments to nations on the American continent "engaged in war against a non-American state or states."

There is a great deal of logic in this idea. We are now selling munitions abroad in so many quarters that, if we get into another war in the near future, some American boys will certainly be killed by munitions of American manufacture. There is much to be said for a proposal to take us out of the munitions-exporting business permanently, in peace and war alike.

Most Doctors Believe Pneumonia Sufferers Should Go to Hospital

(No. 187)

The person attending a patient with pneumonia should wear a clean gown, which should be changed before she comes in contact with other people. Her hands should be thoroughly cleaned with soap and water whenever she leaves the patient. The sick room should be kept as clean as possible and thoroughly aired, washed, and sunned after the victim recovers.

It is particularly important to protect children from pneumonia. A baby should never be taken into a room in which there is someone suffering from that disease.

One of the most important factors in caring for a patient with pneumonia is to keep him as quiet as possible, both mentally and physically.

Good nursing may mean the difference between life and death. Because of this, most doctors feel that a pneumonia victim is better off in a hospital than at home. Moreover, it is better to get the patient to go to the hospital immediately and not to wait until his illness has reached a critical stage.

"By this time," says Dr. Rufus Cole, "it usually is too late and extra care available in the hospital is more than offset by the injury done to the patient by the excitement and the effort of the change."

The pneumonia sufferer should have a large and well ventilated room with access to plenty of good fresh air. This does not mean he is to lie outdoors, exposed to storms. He must be protected, in fact, from inclement weather.

Because of the inflammation in the lungs, the control of breathing is one of the most difficult factors in the treatment. It is for this purpose largely that oxygen is used.

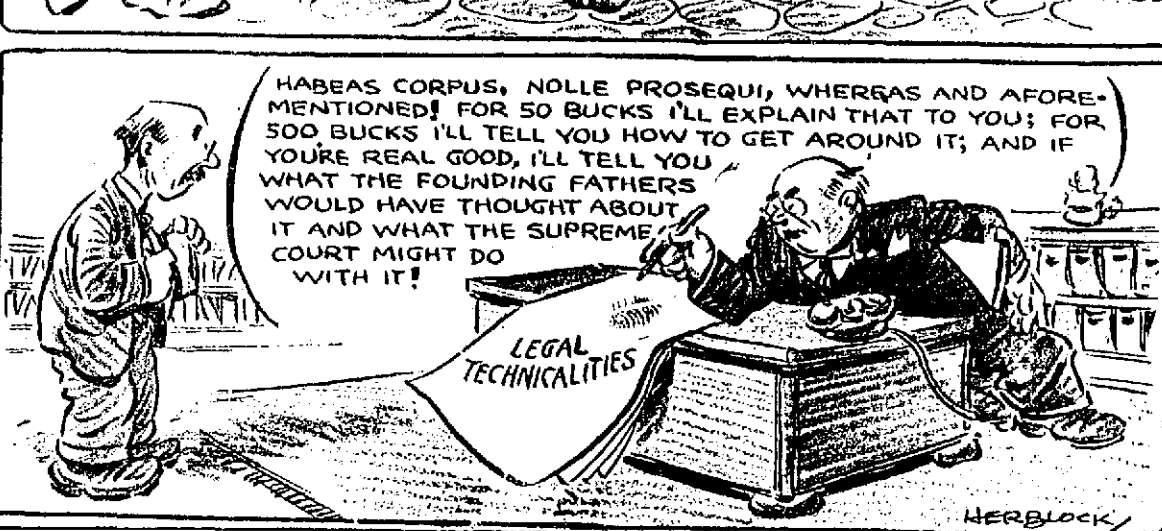

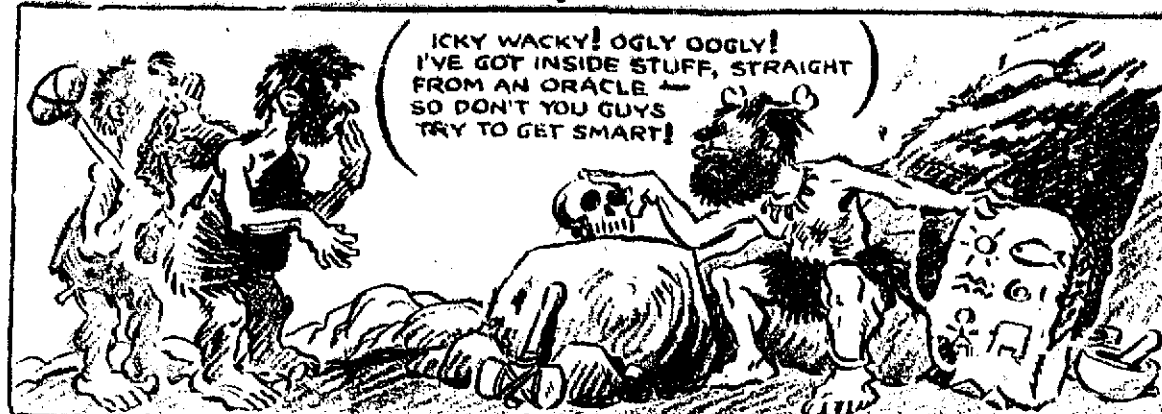

The number of visitors must be kept at a minimum. A patient with pneumonia should not have to worry about troubles in the family or business affairs. He must be kept on his back for at least a week after recovery has begun. Convalescence must be slow and completely controlled. Indeed, even the change from a prone to a sitting posture must be made very gradually.

X-ray may be used to determine the extent of pneumonia when it attacks. Sometimes a consolidation in the lungs, due to the inflammation, may thus be noted even before any physical signs appear.

Since the onset of pneumonia resembles that of some other infectious diseases, the diagnosis often is difficult in early stages of the disease. At this time, the doctor may wish to await the results of all the latest methods with certainty.

This early diagnosis is especially important, because the chief value of the serum, as will be shown later, depends on the speed with which it is given after the diagnosis is made.

Falling, with the help of GERRY NEAL, to locate her companion, BETTY HAYNES, abducted by JACK SPEDDON, MARY HITTAIN starts north up the west coast from San Francisco. She faces a critical problem since she is in love with Neal, yet suspects him of being involved in the disappearance of Betty.

At a small California border town she suddenly decides to cast her aside in favor of better judgment and who has Neal arrested, charging him with complicity in Betty's disappearance. Then she speeds on north to Portland. There she gets a strange note from Betty, referring to a "clinic in Seattle," and that clinic is an underworld character and hint that Betty might have been murdered.

Arriving in Seattle, still searching for Betty, Martha sees a letter at the Yukon parking block from ALFRED SLOAN, head of the Airedale Trailer Company, instructing her to turn over her equipment to a designated agent who would meet her there.

The agent, in disguise, proves to be Speddon. Martha screams but in a flash Speddon has struck her. She awakens hours later to find herself bound and gagged, lying on the floor of a dark warehouse. Standing over her is Speddon, who tells her she may see Betty in an hour.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

MARTHA munched the sandwiches hurriedly. When she had finished, Speddon handed her the warm thermos bottle of coffee. Somehow the black liquid raised her spirits appreciably.

"Have you," she asked suddenly, heard from Gerry Neal?"

In the darkness she sensed Speddon's surprise. "Neal?" he repeated. Then, a moment later, "What about him?"

"I just wondered if you'd heard from him."

"Where did you see him last?" Speddon asked oddly.

"He was with me in Monterey, and later in San Francisco." She did not add that she had caused Neal's arrest in Eureka. Speddon's reaction to the subject of Gerry Neal puzzled her, and she did not know how far to go.

"What did he say about me?" Speddon wanted to know.

Martha hesitated. "He said that he knew you. I don't remember him saying anything else. He wondered why you didn't wait for him in Los Angeles as was planned."

"Yeah?" Speddon lighted a cigarette in the darkness. Under the yellow flare of the match his thin face shown eerily. "Well, I'll tell you why I didn't wait. It was because I didn't want to. When he wasn't there with you I got suspicious."

"Why?" asked Martha quickly. Speddon did not answer at once. Then his words came slowly. "I want to get out of this racket—and Neal don't. Once I made the mistake of telling him I wanted to get out."

"What—what did he say?"

"He said I was crazy to talk about leaving it. He said I'd better forget it or he'd mention it to the chief. I'm still afraid he will—but after this job I'm done. We're close to Canada, and that's where I'm heading."

MARTHA felt gone, lost. She knew now that she had somehow hoped that Neal wasn't a criminal, that his connection with Speddon and Betty's disappearance was the result of some circumstances over which he had no control. But now here was the truth—Neal was in it with all his heart. Speddon had wanted to go straight, and Neal had fought it.

"I don't trust that guy," Speddon went on in the darkness. "I got a hunch he's after me."

"But why did you take Betty with you?"

"She made a crack that sounded like she knew too much, and I figured it was safer to have her along."

Martha set down the thermos with a trembling hand. "But what is all this—this racket? What have I to do with it?"

"Plenty," grunted Speddon. "Whether you know it or not."

"But what is it?"

"I've shot off enough. Anyhow, you'll sleep better nights if you don't know what it's all about."

Martha knew from his tight tone that he realized he had talked enough—perhaps too much. She had got as much from him as she could. "You've untied my hands," she said. "Would you mind taking the rope off my ankles? It's hurting."

"Okay. The boys'll be here any minute now and you'll have to do some walking." Speddon's deft, thin fingers unloosed the rope at her feet.

Then Speddon fell utterly silent, smoking in the darkness. Periodically the tip of his cigarette would sear the blackness pitilessly, throw a soft glow on his sallow face. It was plain that he was thinking hard. What manner of man was he, Martha wondered.

SUDDENLY, far down at one end of the dark warehouse, there was a sound of a heavy sliding door moving on its rollers. Then the bright rays of a powerful flashlight.

"Here's the boys," Speddon said. "Come on." He took Martha by the arm, lifted her to her feet. Her legs and arms stiffened from their long imprisonment, she almost fell to the floor again.

The flashlight came on, bathing them in its glare. Martha could not see beyond the powerful light. Then it was extinguished, as if the owner had satisfied himself that everything was as he expected.

"All set," she heard a gruff voice ask.

"Yes," Speddon answered. "What's the idea of that light? You might as well carry a light-house with you!"

"We're all right," the voice replied. "There ain't been a patrolman past this dock in five years. Come on . . . the tub's ready."

Coming through the partly opened door and into the keen air, Martha saw the "tub" at the bottom of a ladder lashed to the pilings of the dock. It was a sleek speedboat, rising and falling easily with the movement of the Sound.

"I'll go first," Speddon said, "then the dame."

One of the two men held her arm roughly while Speddon started down the ladder. In a moment she heard his voice drifting up to them softly. "Okay . . . send her down."

Gingerly Martha put her feet onto a rung of the slippery wooden ladder. Afraid to look at the water, she started down. Then she felt Speddon's hand on her wrist. "You're all right now. Sit down at the rear."

THE two men followed like monkeys, tossed off the mooring lines. There was a muffled roar from the high-powered motor, and the speedboat took a wide turn and started out across the moonlit Sound. Suddenly one of the men came toward her with something white in his hand.

"There's no need for that," she heard Speddon say. "She's not going to jump overboard."

The big man turned to his adviser. "It's the chief's orders."

"I don't give a — if it is. There's no need for it. I've given that dame one shot of chloroform today and that's enough."

"Listen, Jack—I'm working for Johnny Ciznik, not you. He said he wanted her out when she came aboard. So she's going to be that way, see?"

Martha tried to scream as the evil-smelling cloth was clamped against her mouth and nose. "Go ahead and yell," the fellow laughed. "That'll make you get the stuff all the quicker."

In that last terrible moment before she lost consciousness she wondered if she and Betty had become involved in one of those vast crime rings which, until now, she had always believed to be only the fiction of the detective magazines.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

"A Foreigner Looks at the TVA"

In the great Tennessee Valley project, Americans are doing a job which has a profound and far-reaching significance they themselves do not understand. All things considered, it is probably one of the most fateful experiments being conducted in the world today.

So says an alert journalistic Frenchwoman, Cécile Keun, in a provocative little book entitled "A Foreigner Looks at the TVA" (Longmans, Green: $1.25).

The ignorance of Europeans concerning America, says Mme. Keun, is appalling. It was to help remove a bit of that ignorance that she visited America; arriving, she found herself completely bewildered by the nation's contrasts and contradictions. Not until she visited the valley did she see a ray of light that might be a signpost for the future.

For TVA, to Mme. Keun, represents an effort "to adjust capitalism to the present realities and the actual trends of thought"—an effort which, if it succeeds, may actually provide the blueprint for a solution of the seemingly insoluble problems of the day.

The world's chief question today, she continues, is whether these problems can be settled peacefully, in a middle-of-the-road manner. If any people can find that solution, she believes, Americans can; it is her thesis that in the TVA they are finding it, putting it into operation, demonstrating that it can and does work.

You will find this slim book exciting and thought-provoking. You may not agree with all that is in it, but you will find it well worth reading.

it up.

"What was wrong about the pencils that day?" I asked.

He colored and replied seriously. "I just got a cranky streak, because you told me to do it, and didn't ask me."

I guess I said something like, "Dear, oh dear," and we both laughed.

He is a newspaper man today and for many years we have been fast friends. He is one of the finest men I know, as he was one of the most splendid of boys.

What a lesson it taught me. There are times to give orders and times to make requests.

Orders Fail

Not long ago, another fine little fellow who, like Egbert, can be driven just so far and not a bit more, took on a mulish look and stood balkily, when his mother said, "Go out, Dickie, and pick up the papers in the yard. The wind will scatter them all over the street."

This little fellow never moved at all. Usually he was quite tractable and his mother had no trouble, but these unaccountable stubborn spells did happen.

To tell all the different ways she tried to wheedle him into going after those papers would fill this column. Then she threatened and then she spanked him, but she couldn't lose the battle, she said. And he cried and went to his room and never did pick up the papers at all.

What was in his mind he was too little to tell, because the young child has no gift of words to explain his grievances. All children are inarticulate. But something in his small bosom evidently was whispering, "Unfair," or "Too much," or "I'm very tired and I've been bossed around all day."

Different Approach

In spite of that, had his mother suspected some grievance and said, "I put all those papers in the wrong place and now just see what's happened. Dickie, you please help me gather them up?"—maybe the clouds would have melted.

Mood at the moment causes much stubbornness. We oldsters live by moods. We are tired or out of sorts by spells, and during our moments we aren't going to do one thing we don't have to, and we are not nice about it, either. And we demand soft words to soothe us.

Children are expected to be amiable ALL the time; obedient and serviceable ALL the time. But they have their little spells and grievances and we should sense these things.

The common put-on form of a question is always less irritating, mood or no mood. Children must get weary hearing, "Do this, do that," all day long, without any option on their part whatsoever.

HOLLYWOOD

Film Fans Must Have Their Happy Endings

HOLLYWOOD.—Maybe this department had better take a few evenings off to attend all the movies in town and find how they come out. For between the preview of a picture and the time it hits the screen at popular prices, a lot of changes are likely to occur, especially in the conclusion.

The filming of various endings to pictures is an indication that the movie makers would like to dish up sterner drama but are fearful of box-office indignation. It seems that screen audiences, by and large, still insist on happy endings.

Warners initiated the optional conclusion idea more than a year ago with "Petit Frère Forest." On the stage, Humphrey Bogart killed Leslie Howard and was a satisfying finale brought the story plainly showed that only death could be a fulfillment of the character's destiny.

When the play was filmed, though, some of the studio executives were uneasy about it and arranged for another ending to be filmed, with Howard getting the girl and villain Bogart getting his come-uppance.

Both endings were viewed locally and it finally was decided that Howard should die. That's about the only instance, however, of the tougher finish being chosen.

Nick of Time

"Maid of Salem," at the preview, was devoid of climax. But now I'm told that customers are shown Fred MacMurray riding hooky-book to the very gallows and to the rescue of poor Miss Colbert.

Brian Aherne, as the Irish patriot Dennis Riordan, expired nobly at the preview of "Beloved Enemy." Everyone who saw him talked, thought that was the way the story should end. But it doesn't. The producer, Riordan a reprieve, and now he survives at every performance with a muttered remark to the effect that you can't kill an Irishman.

Take Your Choice

They had a terrible time making up their minds about "Lost Horizon." James Hilton's book didn't attempt to settle the fate of Robert Conway, but left the reader in a speculative, hopeful mood. So that was one of the endings chosen for the picture—the final scene showed the little group of Englishmen, in their London club, clinking their glasses in a benevolent toast to the safe arrival of Conway and all of us at our respective Utopias.

That was the way it was shown at the premiere here. But at the press preview, a few days previously, some added scenes revealed Conway (Ronald Colman) struggling through blizzard-swept passes and actually coming in sight of his destination—the gateway to Shangri-La. At that portal stood

What thought our dreams break on some rock-bound shore And leave but fragments scattered on the sands!

Shall we be grieving for them evermore, Or shall we bind them up with eager hands,

And laugh again, and dance again... and keep As souvenirs their broken wings, nor hide

Their scars, nor be afraid Fate yet may sweep Them back to sea on some outgoing tide?

Why should one fear the vague, on-coming years If courage speak the final, dauntless word

That puts the seal of silence on our fears? For we can tell you this: that we have heard

LETTERS to the Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Letters criticizing the editorial policy or commenting upon facts in the news columns, are equally welcome. Choose a topic everyone will be interested in. Be brief. Avoid personal abuse. The world's greatest critics were painfully polite. Every writer must sign his name and address.

Our Government

Editor The Star: Since my letter entitled "The Supreme Court" a while back I have for some reason been interviewed by parties whom I regard as better informed, and seeing that my position coincided with their own, requested that I write another covering the supreme court, the constitution, and their contrast over legislation. It is my candid opinion that in grave cases such as the one in question at present—one that involves the entire economic structure and the progress of our nation—its fate should not be left to a handful of politicians often governed by petty politics and selfish interests.

What the people want is results, not technicalities.

As to the New Deal, it would seem that its accomplishments before having been riddled by the supreme court, should be sufficient to convince all unbiased minds of the wisdom of Roosevelt's logic.

I am no Solomon. I invited friendly criticism. I realize that this article will be regarded by many as radical. Yet, if it creates interest, my purpose will have been accomplished. We are constantly facing new economic problems—problems which can not be settled by precedent, owing to the lack of parallel.

Dr. Abington in our state legislature a few years ago introduced a bill which was challenged on the ground of constitutionality. Abington's retort was, "To hell with the constitution!" for which he was severely criticized. And while I deplore the language used before a respectable body, yet in a way he expressed my sentiments.

Franklin prophesied in his day, that in his opinion the constitution in cases of emergency would become a menace to the progress of civilization. We live to see the fulfillment of his prophecy. We are now living in an enlightened age; more and more we see the need of emergency legislation.

In the present case the supreme court is composed of nine judges composing two factions—five of the old-line politicians, four progressives. The former, being in the majority, overrule the latter; and I dare say that neither are capable of wise decisions in legislation that conflicts with their political views or selfish interests, especially so among the aged.

I trust that none, when they realize that I myself am rapidly advancing in age, will take any exception when I say that generally speaking the human sack mill will be compared to a sack of cement, which is its early stage is resilient and can be twisted into almost any position, but in its advanced stage when reduced to a fluid and allowed to season it can never be used for other purposes; and so, with the aged.

It is a problem indeed for them to adapt themselves to modern environment. But one says, What is the remedy? In our state civil and criminal cases we use the jury system, a system which has never been questioned. Our prosecution and defense attorneys see that no biased minds sit on these juries. I would suggest in such cases we select men of ability and without political aspirations from various localities about the nation to settle these questions. Should the constitution conflict, let them amend it and save time.

Our horse and buggy served wonderfully in their day. But in this advanced day, during the day of the automobile, the airplane, and electricity, when all the nations of the world are struggling for supremacy, if we would hold our own among the leading nations, we must have progress.

Junior High Wins From Oglesby 20-0

Two Weeks of Spring Football Concluded at Schools Here

Junior High School boys of the 115-pound weight won from Oglesby in a football game at Oglesby school Monday afternoon, 20 to 0. The game climaxed two weeks of spring football for the students of Oglesby.

Robert White and Jimmy Simms did most of the ground gaining for the Junior High team. Guthrie and Urban for Oglesby were outstanding at end positions. Roy White did a good job in the backfield for Oglesby.

The game was sponsored by the WPA recreational council with Zeylon Holly as supervisor. The lineup:

Oglesby	Junior High
Guthrie	Kink
Somers	Center
Evans	Right Guard
Urban	Right tackle
Aslin	Right end
Bruner (c)	Fullback
Roy White	Right halfback
	Quarterback
	Simms (c)

It has been estimated that 131 pounds of fuel are needed to haul 1000 tons of freight one mile by railroad.

Cleveland Needs Feller Because Harder Is Through—Grayson

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
CLEVELAND baseball writers are as optimistic as a Los Angeles rector working with other people's money. They got that way in 1920 when Tris Speaker led the Indians down in front of a hobbled collection of Chicago White Sox, and a cure-all has yet to be perfected.

Cleveland's diamond scribes once more have won the American League pennant—in April. The Indians always are out of it by fall, but spring days always presage another hunting flying in the breeze.

Right now the Cleveland writers are declaring that the 37-year-old Earl Whitehill will win 20 games. The once spot southpaw of Cedar Rapids couldn't do that when he had more curves than a West Virginia highway.

Cleveland experts assert that 18-year-old Bob Feller will cop 20 games on Sundays alone, not to mention week

Texas League Race Begins Wednesday

Schedule Calls for 154 Games—Many New Faces to Be Seen

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—New, boyish faces dominated the eight camps of the Texas baseball league Tuesday night on the eve of the annual jump into 154-game schedules and the Shughart championship playoff series.

Stripped by graduation into the majors, sales, trades, and releases, each club presented a bevy of strangers for the start of a race dopsters have given up trying to figure.

Only one manager who started the 1936 season, Alex Gaston of Dallas, was back to bark orders from the dugout. Homer Peel of Fort Worth, who wound up the season by pumping life into a basement club that threatened in the latter stages of the season, was second in "seniority."

New skippers included Johnny Watwood at Houston; Al Vincent at Beaumont; Hank Severid at Galveston; Zach Taylor at San Antonio; Bruce Connister at Tulsa and Jim Keesey at Oklahoma City.

Of the lot, experts conceded Vincent at Beaumont had the roughest assignment. He has one veteran back from last year's squad to go with a gang of youngsters in the Detroit farm system. He labels them, however, "the pick of the minor leagues."

Fine weather—forecast at mid-summer temperatures—awaited the start of the race and a successor, if any, to the Tulsa Oilers, last year's Texas and Dixie champions.

The PAYOFF

By MAX RIDDLE
NEA Service Sports Writer

American turf lovers now and then succumb, like so many other of Uncle Sam's citizens, to the belief that imported goods are better than our own.

The Kentucky Derby nominations almost always carry the nominations of imported English or French horses. And generally these nominations are made by newcomers to horse racing.

The idea seems to be that the novice will go abroad, buy some champion, and confound the local boys. Movie stars get that way, and the movie coliseum is a rich harvest for foreign solemns at the present time.

Mr. Raoul Walsh, of Hollywood Boulevard, has Sunset Trail entered in the Kentucky Derby. This one is a British horse of some repute.

Yet if he fares no better than previous ones have done, Sunset Trail is listed in this country as Sunset Trail II will be a nonentity in six months.

Likes Imported Horses
Sunset Trail brings to mind the fact that Mr. Walsh for some time has been trying desperately to win the big stakes with an imported star.

First of all he tried to import Thunkerton, a half-brother of the great filly Quashed which gave Owa-ha a nose beating in the Ascut Cup.

Now because of a certain "bar sinister" in the pedigree of the dam of Quashed and Thunkerton neither can be registered as thoroughbred. Yet both are eligible to race in England.

Naturally the owner of Thunkerton was tickled pink to find an American buyer who would pay a big price for a horse which could not be registered and therefore not used for breeding purposes.

But no sooner was the deal made than Mr. Walsh found to his intense astonishment that Thunkerton could not race in the United States, that is, if Santa Anita obeyed the rules of the Jockey Club. The rule states that only horses registered in the American Stud Book or in the recognized stud book of other countries can race on American tracks, that is, Jockey Club tracks.

Phar Lap Exception
Santa Anita preferred to stick to the rules and Mr. Walsh had to look elsewhere for a champion to win the big Santa Anita purse.

He chose the French horse Grand Banquet, and this one was able to beat only the tail-enders in the great race, although he did finish second to Seabiscuit in the consolation event.

Phar Lap, of course, lived up to everything said of him. But Boy Painter, Challenger II, Pillow Fight, and a host of others have failed miserably.

It is perhaps unfair to include Challenger II since he succumbed to injuries. Yet he didn't go onto the hospital shelf until he had tried and lost for the bloated west coast purse.

Now the English and French have a more or less exaggerated opinion of American wealth. And they have reason to know that rich Americans are not shrewd buyers. So they tack on a heavy premium when they smell an American in the offing.

Importing Is Costly
Dependent knoweth not how much Movie Magnate Walsh paid for his foreign horses. But it's a cinch they didn't come cheap. Nor is it inexpensive to transport horses overseas.

For that reason it seems certain that Rosemont could have been bought for less than Grand Banquet. Seabiscuit probably could have been had for a third that cost.

And either would have paid the initial cost in the Santa Anita and the San Juan Capistrano. The recent epidemic of importations for stud duty has brought us Kantar, Athelstan, Ksar (said to be the most beautiful horse in the world), and Blenheim.

Challenger is in stud, and Grand Banquet might join that list. And for that matter so might Sunset Trail II. It's a pretty safe bet neither will be great on our race courses.

El Dorado Rookie Alarms Dressed

Lloyd Moore Twice Has Gone on Nightmare Rampages

DURHAM, N. C.—(AP)—Nightmares that haunt the dreams of Lloyd Moore, rookie Cincinnati pitcher, made Manager Chuck Dressen fearful Tuesday lest the six-foot-one recruit suffer injury.

Dressen suggested Trainer Richard J. Rohde devise a screen to protect the windows of Pullman cars.

He left to Lefty Lee Grissom, southpaw pitcher, the responsibility for seeing that Moore inflict no injury on his fellow Reds.

Moore, 22-year-old twirler who won 20 games while losing five for El Dorado last season, twice has gone on night-bound rampages during the Reds' last season.

Grissom alone had expressed willingness to room with Moore. He figured his 200 pounds would suffice to enable him to control the lad two years his junior.

Moore first demonstrated his violent struggles last fall when he joined the Reds for the last few weeks of the season.

He dreamed the team's train had been wrecked. Attempting to escape, he kicked out the window and was trying to crawl through when a brakeman interrupted him.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Long range slugging by Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey paced the New York Yankees to a 14 to 5 victory over the Knoxville Smokies of the Southern Association, Tuesday.

PORTSMOUTH, Va.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers barely staggered through an 11 to 9 victory over Portsmouth of the Piedmont League Tuesday, when Ralph Birkhofer retired the last hitter for the Portsmouth team and halted a two-run rally.

ROME, Ga.—(AP)—Hal Schumacher became the first New York Giants pitcher to go the full nine innings Tuesday as he beat the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 1. Mel Ott hit a homer for the winners in the fourth.

ASHVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals turned in an easy

Moore dreamed he was in a football game. Leaping from the bed, he grabbed Grissom around the legs and tried to heave the southpaw over his head.

"Pitching is a snap compared to riding a nightmare," Grissom declared. "I have to sleep with one eye open all the time."

12 to 4 victory here Tuesday over the Asheville Tourists of the Piedmont League, one of their farm clubs.

Dizzy Dean hurled the first seven innings, the farthest a Red-Bird pitcher has gone this season, and allowed four hits and two runs.

Melo Almada, Boston rightfielder, was carried from the field to a hospital when he was struck in the head by a ball pitched by Rookie Lloyd Moore of the Reds.

The accident occurred in the eighth inning. The extent of Almada's injuries was not learned immediately. It was feared he had been injured seriously.

DiMaggio Sent to New York Doctor

Sensational Yankee Outfielder Has an Ailing Throwing Arm

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees' youthful slugger, was on the way to New York Tuesday night where he will undergo a physical examination to determine the cause of his ailing throwing arm.

A Knoxville physician examined DiMaggio's tonsils Tuesday and was quoted by DiMaggio as saying they were infected but "had not reached the chronic stage."

DiMaggio said his arm has been "hurting me for the last nine days." He has been out of the Yankee lineup recently. Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, has used his prize sophomore flycatcher only as a pinch-hitter.

Is Nature's Way Best?

SCIENCE MAKES BETTER NITRATE OF SODA THAN NATURE—SCIENCE GIVES YOU MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA.

Every farmer knows that just because a thing is natural doesn't mean it is the best that can be.

That very thing is also true about nitrate of soda.

Some years ago, American scientists set about for a way to improve on nature and make a better nitrate of soda. They knew that the reason farmers bought nitrate of soda was for the nitrogen in it, and they figured that if they could make one that would have more nitrogen in it, they would do a service to the farmer.

Millions of dollars were spent, and finally they produced a "soda" right here in the South that was more perfect than any that had ever been produced before by Nature or by Man.

That product is known as Arcadian, The American Nitrate of Soda.

It gives more nitrogen for the money than any other "soda". And Nitrogen is what your crops need from nitrate of soda.

So, you see, Science has once again improved on Nature for your benefit.

When fertilizer makers buy nitrate of soda for their mixed goods these days, they buy Arcadian because they know nitrogen is what "soda" gives them, and they want the most for their money.

So why don't you do the same?

When you buy Arcadian, you not only buy wisely, but you are buying an all-Southern product—made in the South, by Southerners, for Southern crops.

Farm Group Gives $64,279 in Loans

This Total Issued by Nashville Association in First Three Months

Farmers in this section have launched their 1937 crop season confident that this year will be better than the past, according to C. F. Hill, secretary-treasurer of the Nashville Production Credit association. This is indicated Mr. Hill declares, by the number of loans closed by the association during January, February and March.

During the first three months of this year the association has made 579 loans amounting to $64,279.50. In February and March the association's business was particularly rushing. "New applications," Mr. Hill said, "are pouring in every day and although we believe the peak of the season is past, we expect the volume to continue strong through April and into May. In addition to the volume of crop loans the association's business has been swelled by loans for fruit and livestock production and other farm purposes."

Four specific ways in which farmers save on loans made by this co-operative association are given by Mr. Hill. They are: (1) The low interest rate; (2) the plan of budgeting loans on the basis of income and expense; (3) terms up to 12 months that fit each farmer's particular operating program making it unnecessary to pay interest on idle money; and (4) the use of production credit loans to pay cash thereby obtaining substantial discounts and avoiding carrying charges for supplies "bought on account."

until the proper time. "I also told Bearden that I didn't want any lawyer and that I could fight the case myself."

Story of Note

Under cross examination by Prosecuting Attorney Stewart and John P. Vesey, the slayer said that in 1920 he had given Derryberry a note for $50 and had paid some on the note occasionally until it was reduced to about $10.

Hembree said he went to the Derryberry home to pay the balance, but that Derryberry had refused to "give me the note because it was put away in a trunk."

Hembree said he had not received much schooling and that he had had no trouble in school—except "where it was the teacher's fault."

He was then asked if he had talked to a reporter of Hope Star after the killing. Hembree replied: "That guy claimed to be a reporter, but I didn't tell him anything about the killing because I didn't think it was any of his business. I knew the people would find out about the shooting, anyway."

Hembree said. He continued by saying that the shooting had "never bothered me, that my heart and mind is clear," and that "it was necessary to shoot him to protect my life and property."

Court then recessed for the noon hour.

Son Testifies

Proceeding Hembree on the stand were Quinton Derryberry, 17, son of the dead man, W. M. Easterling, Harry Derryberry, another son of the slain man, Doris Maxwell, negro, and Carl Coffee.

Quinton Derryberry was the first witness to take the stand. He told of the actual shooting in Hope. Easterling also told of the shooting and said that he saw Hembree walk away from the scene.

Harry Derryberry said that he was in Texarkana at the time of the shooting, but told of a debt that Hembree owed his father. He said about two years ago his father asked Hembree for the balance of the debt and that "Hembree got awful mad at that time."

The negro Maxwell and Carl Coffee said they had known both Derryberry and Hembree a number of years, but knew of no trouble between the two men.

A number of defense witnesses were expected to take the stand during the afternoon, including Dr. A. C. Kolb, former superintendent of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases. The case may reach the jury late in the day.

The jury is composed of Sid Bundy, Jimmy Cook, Jimmy Fields, Jim Wilson, I. T. Bell, Jr., W. W. Ellen, Otis Johnson, O. A. Daniels, Ed Shepperdson, A. U. Sullivan, Alvin Robinson, C. C. Norwood.

Hembree was dressed in gray trousers, gray jacket, wore a blue shirt open at the collar, puffed on cigars and smiled occasionally. He appeared unperturbed, except of the witness stand.

FUN with FACTS

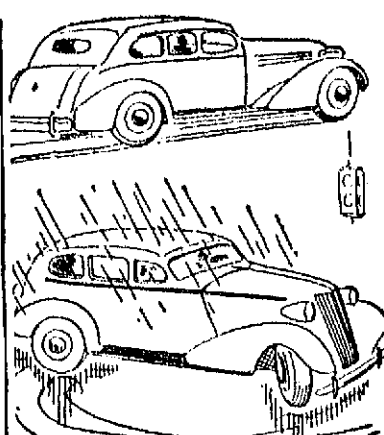

THE FUN

Place a clean, dry saucer or platter upon a table. Take a pencil, eraser and down, and hold it against the platter at an angle of about 45 degrees. Push firmly in an endeavor to move the pencil across the platter. You will find that the platter moves and may even push the table-covering or table itself.

Place a small quantity of water in the platter and repeat. You will find the pencil eraser now moves across the platter with very little effort. We might say that it "skids" across the platter. There will be no tendency to move the dish.

(Travelers Safety Service)

THE FACTS

On a clean, dry pavement, your tires exert a very strong push. It is this push which moves your car forward. When the pavement is wet, your tires have a tendency to repeat the eraser and wet platter performance. This may prove to be dangerous if you try to stop quickly or change your direction suddenly. Other conditions which tend to cause similar results are wet leaves, car tracks, oil, ice and snow. Under such circumstances, whenever you feel impatient, just remember the wet eraser.

Germany Replies

fact the pope not only engaged in criticism of internal conditions in the Reich but went so far as to launch a worldwide appeal which to a certain extent seeks to erect a general anti-German front.

"The note points out that the papal encyclical on Mexico did not contain such an appeal to the world's conscience as the present letter does."

"It further pointed out the Vatican applies to the new Germany democratic and parliamentary standards which are not applicable, and that Germany's population is only one-third Catholic."

"Referring to the assertion made in the papal letter that the Catholic religion is being destroyed in Germany, the note claims far-reaching consequences."

Rhoda Blevins Brown of Highland died in the Nashville hospital and was buried at Olan cemetery Sunday.

Too Much Temptation

CHICAGO—Larry Rosenthal, Chicago White Sox outfielder, spent two jobs in a brewery last winter. He was afraid of putting on weight.

Work Seems Easier

And Life Pleasanter When You Are Free From Constipation

The bad feelings and dullness often attending constipation take the joy out of life. Try a dose of Black-Draught at the first sign of constipation and see how much better it is to check the trouble before it gets a hold on you. Black-Draught is purely vegetable and is so prompt and reliable.

Get refreshing relief from constipation by taking Black-Draught.

A GOOD LAXATIVE

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rain to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 26c.

Develop Protective Wax

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The wax secreted by a South American palm tree to keep its moisture in is used on navy airplanes to keep moisture out. Tests made at the National Bureau of Standards for the navy's bureau of aeronautics show that an extremely thin film of carnauba wax spread over a coat of paint on an airplane will prevent almost entirely the penetration of water through the paint to the fabric or metal.

The wax is obtained from the Brazilian palm tree. It serves as a coating on the leaves and fruit to cut down moisture losses.

Wall Street For

the act will work. We have not said the Wagner act has affected us in one way or the other. I don't see how it can as long as we go ahead as we have in the past."

"Wall Street wants to stabilize things at some level," Ford explained. "They want to create a machine that will turn out as much dividends as possible. They have industry pretty well controlled on the management side and if they can control labor, through the unions, they think they will have it stabilized. The unions were created by Wall Street—by capital—to bring about that control."

"The Ford company is the disturbing element in this picture of stabilization. It believes in competition. It believes in scrapping old machinery when new machinery will produce automobiles at lower cost. It believes that markets can be created only by paying high wages."

Ford drew no distinction between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"They're both the same," he said.
